SWAPPED SUITS.

I was riding slowly along on my tired sorrel nag after an all day's pull up the mountains of east Tennessee, not far from Jasper, and I was in the very midst of the forest primeval. Giant trees stretched their gnarled branches above my head and scattered their brilliant leaves about me, weaving a carpet for my horse's feet more gorgeous than kings have trod. Away off in the lonely Sequatchie I could see the sloping ridges and spreading spurs dovetailing into each other their crimson and yellow and purple till all faded alike into the distant blue as the mountains lost themselves in the misty east. No sound broke the stillness save now and then the barking of a squirrel cracking nuts in the big chestnut trees or the late call of the wood bird for his mate. I was musing on the mighty works of God and the pitiful efforts of his unworthy creatures as I rode along and wondering where I should take my supper, for I was what might be called decently hungry and immoderately thirsty.

Suddenly a sharp turn in the trail struck my horse's nose almost into the very face of a man who sat on a rock by the roadside, staring straight before him. His head and chest were thrown forward, his chin had dropped below zero, his hand knees spread wide apart like the open jaws of a Louisiana alligator and his hands hung limp at his sides. A suit of brown jeans, so now that they smelt of the walnut bark dye, clothed his thin strips of manly form, and a shirt collar of blue hickory turned down around a sparo neck, to the very verge of which his faded, straw colored hair was plastered sleek as a ballroom floor with turkey fat. A more perfect picture of abject misery I never saw before nor since, and I jerked my pony's head out of the man's face and leaped forward in my saddle to look at him.

"Got it bad?" I asked at last, when the creaking of his stiff clothes and the sort of his heavy breathing became embarrassingly audible in the quietude of the forest.

"That's what I hev, stranger," he said, lifting his jaw, but keeping his eyes fixed straight ahead. "Kotched it in the neck an collar bone an chest, an the breast bone, an the heart, an the stomach, an the lights, an the livers, an the bowels, an the yuther lower regions. Facks or the business is, I've got it fu'n the crown or my ole fool head to the soles or my big blamed foot. Got it all over!"

"What gave it to you?"

Hopprang to his 7 feet of height with a yell that reverberated on the mountain side, jumped about a yard from the ground, cracking his heels together as he came down again.

"What gin it to me, stranger?" he shouted when he had lit, "what gin it to me? Why, Nancy, or conrel Who'd you s'pose? Ca'se why? Ca'se or these her plague on clo'es what you see be-fo' you, a-kivarin this flabbergasted ole bird or mine. Look at 'em, stranger. Look at 'em, for Gawd's sake, fur their een is nigh at han," and the fellow gy-rated around among the dry leaves like a materialized whirlwind.

"Clothes?" said I. "What's the matter with your clothes? That's as good a suit as I've seen this side of Pennsylvania."

"Stranger, you don't mean it?" he said softly, coming up close beside me and fetching a whack across my thigh that tingled all the way up my anatomy, creeping out at the end of my funny bone. "S'ho' now, you don't mean it?"

"Yes, I do, though, but what does Nancy say about it?" I answered.

"Stranger," he said, leaning on my pony's neck and looking up at me confidentially, "you see it's thiser way. Me an Nancy thar's been keepin' company nigh on to three years come the 18 day or nex' December, an things had about got whar thar warn't nary ornery cuss on the mountains as dared to look at the groun she walked on.

That's what! I'm some stranger, whenst I gits riled, an the fellows 'lowed 'twas my deal, an olared the track. Well, each was matters tell the 27 day nex' las' August, whenst we was comin' home 'f'm meetin' down to the cove, me an Nancy. That day I axed an Nancy spoke the word, an we fixed the time—this here very day, blame it—fur the knot to be tied, the knot which binds, but don't inebrate."

I saw the fellow's jaw was beginning to quiver, and suddenly he clapped his hands to his face and dropped back on the stone.

I thought he was going off into one of those staring trances perhaps, or worse, so I interposed gently: "Where was the hitch?"

"Right here, darn it all," he shouted, snapping his narrow pantaloons and flinging open his ample coat front. "These here clo'es, I tell you, Mam made 'em fur me with her own han's, too, that's whar it hurts. I can't go back thar to the cabin an tell mam Nancy scorned the clo'es she made, could you now, stranger, of you was me? I've knowed mam longer'n I hev Nancy, an she hev stood by me th'ough evil as well as th'ough good report, in sickness an in health"—the fellow's axes

CARLISLE SCORED.
Bryan of Nebraska Says He Deserited the Masses for the Classes.

The eloquent Nebraska Congressman, W. J. Bryan, by invitation addressed a meeting of the silver men of Memphis upon the adjournment of the "Non-Partisan Sound Money Convention." The meeting was held at the Opera House and a large number of people who sought admittance could not be accommodated. Mr. Bryan was introduced by editor McCormack of the Commercial Appeal and was enthusiastically received. He devoted a considerable part of his speech to comparisons of Carlisle's remarks when in Congress with what he says as a member of the Cabinet. The points made by Mr. Bryan were loudly applauded.

HOW ARE THE MIGHTY FALLEN.

Mr. Bryan said in part: "I have read the speech delivered by Mr. Carlisle in this city, also that delivered by him at Covington, Ky., last Monday evening, and I have compared them with the speech delivered by him on February 21, 1878, in the House of Representatives, and I am reminded of the language used by David in lamenting the death of Saul, 'How are the mighty fallen!'"

"In 1878, Mr. Carlisle was hurling the pebbles of truth at the giant of the Philistines, John Sherman; to-day as a Goliath, he daily issues challenges to his former friends."

"Mr. Carlisle did not refer while at Memphis, to his speech in 1878, but he did refer to it at Covington and said: 'Some of the opinions then expressed have been modified, and some of them have been changed altogether by subsequent events and by a more thorough investigation of the subjects to which they related, but on the question of free coinage my convictions have never been shaken for a moment.'"

"But he did not state, even at Covington, what parts of his former speech he repudiated and what parts he modified."

VOTED FOR FREE COINAGE.

"He served in the House and Senate for about fifteen years after the making of that speech and never upon a single occasion, did he attempt to withdraw the utterances of 1878, or to modify the emphasis with which he then spoke. He explained that he voted for free coinage in 1878, in the hope that it would be amended in the Senate, but he never voted against free coinage until after the nomination of Mr. Cleveland in 1892. It is true that in 1878 Mr. Carlisle did say he was opposed to the free coinage of silver but, he ought in all fairness to have stated that he was at that time opposed to the free coinage of gold also. He said in his speech in 1878, 'I am opposed to the free coinage of either gold or silver, but in favor of the unlimited coinage of both metals, upon terms of exact equality.' Not only was his present language contradicted by his former speech, but a letter written in 1890 by him says that he was at that time in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver."

HONORED BY BANKERS.

"Mr. Carlisle in 1878, said: 'The struggle now going on cannot cease and ought not to cease until the present industrial interests of the country are fully and finally emancipated from the heartless domination of the syndicates, stock exchanges and other great combinations of money grabbers in this country and Europe.' Now Mr. Carlisle is the honored guest at a convention attended by bankers and financiers who are opposed to the use of silver as standard money. Mr. Carlisle asks why the advocates of bimetalism are not in favor of the restoration of silver gradually. What mockery this is. Did they not secure the passage of the Sherman law, after the repeal of the Seigniorage Bill, after the repeal of the Sherman law, and did not Mr. Carlisle's chief, Mr. Cleveland, veto this bill, notwithstanding the fact that it was voted for by more than two-thirds of the Democrats of both Houses? Did not the advocates of bimetalism in the Senate offer to support a bill providing for the unlimited coinage of silver, with the provision that the Government should charge a seigniorage equal to the difference between the bullion and coinage values? Did not the opponents of silver oppose this measure as vainly as they did the free coinage of silver?"

WHEN HE WAS RIGHT.

"In 1878, when Mr. Carlisle was in sympathy with the masses of the people, he said: 'Let us, if we can do no better, pass bill after bill' embodying in each some one substantial provision for relief and send them to the executive for his approval. If he withholds his signature, and we are unable to secure the necessary vote here or elsewhere, to enact them into laws, notwithstanding his veto, let us, as a last resort, suspend the rules and put them into a general appropriation bill, with the distinct understanding that, if the people can get no relief, the government can get no money.' These are the words of the same distinguished statesman, who, at Memphis and Covington, assures the people that there is now no need of relief, and that we have only to enjoy the prosperity guaranteed by a gold standard."

"Mr. Carlisle, in discussing the legal ratio, assumes that the United States can accomplish no more by free coinage than our little neighbor, Mexico, and overlooks entirely the effect which will be produced upon the value of silver bullion by the unlimited use of it in the United States. In other words, he does not take into consideration the fact that the United States is in commercial standing, more than ten times as great as Mexico, and he does not take into consideration the fact that an increased demand such as would be furnished by the United States, will effect the price of that portion of silver which falls upon the market."

WHEREIN HE FAILED.

"In estimating the amount of gold available for coinage annually, he fails to consider the great increase in the consumption of gold in the arts, and the increase in commerce in the last 100 years. Mr. Carlisle holds out no hope of international bimetalism, but insists that it is the duty of this government to maintain a gold standard, and tries to show that it will cause an appreciation in the value of the silver dollar."

"At the Memphis convention, Mr. Catchings insisted that opponents of silver were expecting international bimetalism. This seeming conflict between Mr. Carlisle and Mr. Catchings can be easily explained. Mr. Carlisle believed that the government should buy whatever silver it needs, and therefore might be called a 'buy-metallist.' Mr. Catchings is in favor of the restoration of silver after a while, if other nations will help us, and therefore may be called a 'by-and-by-metallist.'"

NO ENGLISH BANKER.

"What need is there for bimetalism if the gold standard will furnish a sufficient amount of money? The confession that bimetalism is desirable destroys all argument advanced in behalf of gold monometallism, and when one has admitted the desirability of bimetalism he must either favor the restoration of it by the United States alone or submit the destinies of this people to foreign nations. It has been well said that it is more dangerous to put an English banker at the head of our financial system than to have an English admiral at the head of our navy or an English general at the head of our army."

DESERTED THE MASSES.

Mr. Bryan discussed various phases of the money question, quoting frequently from Senator Carlisle and answering his arguments by arguments formerly made by Secretary Carlisle or by statistics. He closed by saying that Secretary Carlisle had deserted the "struggling masses" for whom he formerly spoke, but that even without his leadership they would be able to cast their ballots for the restoration of the gold and silver coinage of the constitution, and that the present efforts of Secretary Carlisle, instead of retarding the movement, would make his former speech familiar to the American people and show them the danger of entrusting our financial policy to the "idle holders of idle capital, or to their representatives."

The Fire Bell.

An alarm startled the town yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock, and all who heard it were more startled on account of the gale that was blowing. The fire apparatus was out in a jiffy and made towards the University, the alarm having been rung in from that district. It turned out, however, to be the same old chestnut, the wires had crossed with other wires and caused the going to ring. It was repeated again about 4:30 and Chief Hodgkinson had the wires cut out. It seems as though parties who string these wires through the streets ought to be governed by some ordinance as to where and how they should be run.

Burglarized.
The store of Lange & Schmitt was broken into some time during Sunday night. A window was removed at the back of the building and the burglars gained an entrance. Several pistols, knives and a quantity of cartridges were stolen. It is the opinion that the store was entered by some one familiar with the premises. Some one will get badly hurt at this business yet.

THE GRAND CENTRAL.

One of the Most Popular Hostelties in Reno.

This popular hotel is appropriately named, being situated in the very heart of the city and within one block of the depot. It is located on the corner of Virginia and Plaza streets, and from the wide verandas on both front and side, a view can be obtained of the entire length of Virginia street and Commercial Row and Plaza street. The O'Keefe brothers, Timothy and Daniel, both well known young men in town, who, from a small beginning, have built and equipped one of the best hotels in town and are still its genial landlords. The house has fifty large sunny bedrooms, well furnished and comfortable. Each room is fitted with gas and electrical fixtures and other modern conveniences. The halls are wide and well lighted, and on each floor there is a toilet, bath and wash-room. The stairs are built in short flights with broad landings. Hydrants with hose attached are on each floor as a safeguard against fire, and every possible arrangement is considered for the safety and comfort of guests.

The dining room is one of the handsomest in town, being well arranged, the tables are set off with pretty tableware and the whitest of linen. The kitchen is a model of neatness and convenience, being furnished with a fine Montague range, also large tables, sinks and dish racks. Adjoining the kitchen is a large work room and pantry where the meat and vegetables are prepared, and this whole department is under the careful and experienced eye of a first-class man.

The bar is a large comfortable room conveniently arranged for the purpose for which it is intended and well furnished. Adjoining the bar-room is a private office and reading room, and back of this a neat club room.

The house has just undergone a complete renovation from cellar to garret, every room having been recalculated, the furniture varnished and the wood-work newly painted. Not a place has escaped careful inspection and thorough renovation, even the outside of the building has received a heavy coat of paint and is now undergoing the trimming process. Brewster Coffin has superintended the painting and decorating and Jim Haines was the calculating artist. A new sign bearing the inscription "Grand Central" has been placed in position and is attractive enough to catch the eye readily.

The main point of a hotel is its bill of fare, and in this particular the Grand Central's table is always supplied with the best in the market. The bar carries the best of liquors and cigars. The attendants in every department are courteous, the rates are reasonable, and every detail is carefully looked after by Daniel O'Keefe, and patrons may be assured of the best of treatment.

Notice of Removal.

A Narrow Escape.
While F. O. Carr, his wife and sister-in-law were driving into the country Sunday they came within an ace of having a serious, if not fatal, accident. The wind was blowing a gale and just as they were passing the school house near Sparks ranch, a large cottonwood tree was blown down, reaching entirely across and filling up the road. Mr. Carr heard the tree cracking and saw that it was about to fall and that he was almost under it, and there was no time to turn, so he put whip to the horse and just escaped, some of the foliage of the tree brushing the buggy as it fell. The tree brought down some telegraph wires and the horse, which was a spirited one, became entangled and for a moment or two could hardly be controlled. The ladies were terribly frightened, but they were thankful to escape with only a fright.

Viavi.

A physician of Reno says he would have more faith in Viavi, if we did not claim so much for it. Doctor, how can we help it, if it makes the cure for instance? Its use in Mr. Hunter's case is entirely out of its legitimate line, yet note the result. He was suffering intense pain, the physician expected his medicine to control it, in from two to three days. He used it three weeks and the pain was still as great. He was kept under opiates, to which I objected as I believe in curing pain instead of stupefying the body. The doctor said it was not probable he would ever get out again, and we must make him as comfortable as possible. I was not satisfied, I paid the doctor and sent for another. He assured me all had been done that could be, that he would have prescribed about the same. I discarded all medicine and used Viavi. In one night, with nothing but hot and cold water and Viavi Course, I gained control of the pain, and in two or three days not a vestige was left, and in two weeks he was on the street. There are other cases here just as wonderful. I will be glad to explain its uses to all who call.

Beyond Description

Intense Suffering With Muscular Rheumatism.

"I hereby certify that for seven years I was troubled with my knees. I used prescriptions and liniments but all to no purpose. The trouble kept growing worse and the joints began to enlarge. My knees became almost stiff and I could not rest day and night. I had to use

Crutches at times and often it would seem as if I would have to have my leg amputated as the pain became almost unendurable. I suffered beyond description. Finally, hearing of Hood's Sarsaparilla I bought one bottle I felt much better and after taking several bottles can truthfully say I am well.

My Knee Has Been Cured and that I can walk and go around as well as any one of my age. I am 68 years old and work my farm, and my ability to do so I attribute to the beneficial effects of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I advise all who are afflicted with rheumatism in any form to take Hood's Sarsaparilla." EZRA BENEDICT, Stomach, Nebraska.
